Rock band helps youth fight drugs

By FLORENCE MEEKS ANP Staff Writer

Too often rock groups convey negative images - members are perceived as trouble makers or people on the fast track.

Members of a local group, Kiss 'N' Tell, hope to send a different message.

Joining a Romulus anti-drug campaign, the group performed at a student rally at Romulus Junior High School Monday morning.

Steve Langley, lead guitarist, said most people notice his long hair and torn blue jeans and base their opinions on those qualities.

"People assume I'm a drug addict," he said.

"It was important to get the message across, you can play your music, do what you want, and you don't have to do drugs," said Sandra Langley, organizer of anti-drug campaign, Build a Bridge to the Fu-

The communitywide education campaign has special significance to the group because most of the members grew up in Romulus. Alternatives proposed for drain project

By FLORENCE MEEKS ANP Staff Writer

Alternative funding ideas for the controversial Ecorse Creek drainage proposal will be discussed by city officials during a study session March 26.

Proposed in October was a $5.9 million storm water drainage system to be funded by a special assessment to property owners near Ecorse Creek. The city and county were also expected to pay a portion of the

The affected district would include property on the north and south sides of Smith Road, east of Merriman and bounded by Wayne Road, Ecorse Road, Interstate 94 and sections of Ecorse Creek.

During a public hearing, district homeowners criticized the proposal. They said the drain will mainly benefit business people in the district, and they did not want to be saddled with additional tax bills.

Mayor Beverly McAnally has maintained the Ecorse Creek project will encourage further development in the area and create long-term benefits for the entire community.

The system would consist of an underground storm drain a retention pond which would serve the entire region. The pond would be located on city property.

Future additions would include a section of open channel to carry water from the creek to the enclosed area.

City engineers said the proposed project would eliminate the need for each developer in the area to create individual retention ponds, limiting the amount of land that could be used for taxable developments.

In response to the citizen concerns about an assessment, McAnally said she was considering alternate funding Monday night, McAnally presented an outline of her alternative ideas to council to be reviewed before the study session. She said she expects to present at least five alternatives.

"We intend to have a report for city council...which will out-line several different solutions to the drainage problem, as well as preliminary costs and potential assessment figures. Not all of the alternatives would necessarily require a special assessment by the city. Some could be constructed by agreement between the major benefiting property owners," added Dennis Oakes, community development director.

Among the major property owners in the district are Llwyd

Monday night, Councilmember Noah Bergeron said council must stick by the exact wording of the amendment, and avoid granting more than one 90-day extension period.

"What's going to happen is we're going to have the 90-day extension, and everyone will come back and want another 90 days," he said. "It's a law we adopted, and we better stick with it."

Bergeron added the property ordinance was changed in the past to prevent councilmembers from granting any kind of extension. That law allowed for fair treatment of residents and a clear conscience for city offi-

Flat Rock man is charged with attempted assault

By FLORENCE MEEKS ANP Staff Writer

A 20-year-old Flat Rock man was arrested last week after allegedly attempting to run down a 61-year-old Romulus man with a car.

No injuries were reported as a result of the incident, Romulus police officials said.

David Alexander was charged with felonious assault with an automobile Jan. 30 by Judge Henry Zaborowski in the 34th District Court. The defendant was released on a $10,000 personal bond on the condition he avoid contact with the victim and his family.

the car incident began as an argument between Alexander and his Romulus girlfriend at the Beverly Road home of her grandparents.

When the argument became loud, police said, the woman's grandparents attempted to intercept. A physical fight then broke out between Alexander and the girl's grandfather, Willard Bowles, according to police officers.

Alexander allegedly began choking Bowles, police said.

Alexander's girlfriend and her grandmother managed to pull Alexander away and lead him outdoors, police reports in-several large, decorative boulders near the house. Several other attempts to lurch forward failed. Once the car came within one foot of Bowles and the house, police said, but Bowles was not struck.

Impact with the boulders may have damaged the car, which belongs to a girlfriend of Bowles' brother. He was still on the scene when police officers arrived.

Bowles reported several minor scrapes and cuts.

Alexander will return to court Feb. 7 for a preliminary examination.

Youth nominated to academies

By FLORENCE MEEKS ANP Staff Writer

Eight area students have been nominated by U.S. Rep. William Ford (D-Taylor) for admittance into the U.S. Air Force, Merchant Marine, Military and Naval academies.

'This year's selection process was particularly difficult because of the high caliber of the applicants," Ford said.

Nominee selection is based on academic qualities, including class rank, school records, college entrance exam scores and leadership potential, extracurricular activities, athletics, physical fitness and recommendations.

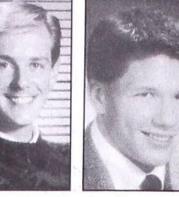

Ford said he used the "competitive" method for nomination. He selects 10 candidates for each vacancy he is entitled to fill and allows the individual academies to select the best qualified persons from the list.

"The young people selected this year have extraordinary academic records and a broad range of interests...They all have the potential to receive an appointment to the academies and the promise that mark outstanding military careers.'

A large impact on recreation programs will now come from local residents, Martin said. City officials hope to learn what the community wants through a citywide survey which was to be sent out

The survey contains two parts. First, residents are asked if they would be willing to pay additional tax money to revamp the South Middle School building into a community center. Some residents have campaigned vigorously to save the former high school from district plans for demolition. Others complain attempts to repair the building would simply be too costly.

Martin said he remains neutral on this issue. If residents voice support for the repair project, the recreation department would work to utilize the school building to full potential, Recreation workers will soon begin a campaign to remind residents to complete the survey and send it back to city offices.

Even before the survey results are in, Martin said he has some changes planned for the department. First, he intends to change the after-school program for elementary school students. The program is divided into three seasons - soccer, hockey and basketball.

"There are kids that are not jocks. We need some kinds of things that are after school...to capture a larger part of the school population.'

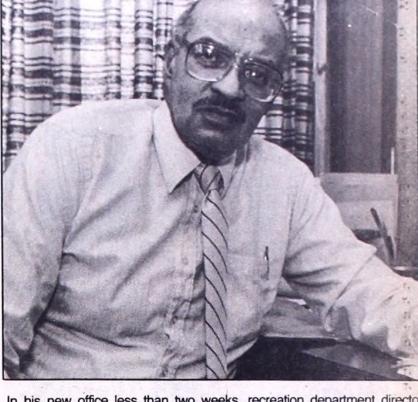

Martin is still contemplating alternate activities.

The director said he will also focus attention on the 550 to 600 senior citizens that use the recreation center.

A major goal, he said, is to expand the Meals on Wheels program, which provides food to homebound seniors. Martin said he wants to eliminate the local waiting list for the program.

The budget for the recreation department is expected to change little, Martin said.

"We'll probably maintain the status quo," he said.

Martin said adjusting to the city system after so many years with the state is a challenge, but he finds his new role satisfying.

"I like people. Any service that can be provided to the community - we're here to serve."

Martin said he likes the fact he can see concrete results from his efforts.

Student directors learn their way in video club

By FLORENCE MEEKS ANP Staff Writer

Yearbooks are taking on a new meaning this year at Romulus Senior High School.

Instead of prowling the halls with cameras, waiting for memorable or embarrassing moments worth capturing, members of the school video club are armed with camcorders.

Members of the club, which formed in September, hope to put together a 60-minute video yearbook by the end of the year. The cassette tape will include brief interviews and excerpts from school events.

Already, the students have taped a classroom version of the popular game show Jeopardy. They also have plans to record a Spanish class performance scheduled for March.

Sponsoring the club are Carol Harriff and Bill Bradford.

"Eventually we'd like to see a video class, and as a long-range goal, a news program. That's a very long-range goal," Harriff

The idea for a video yearbook came from Scholastic Inc., an educational publishing group. Scholastic agreed to send the students a camcorder and monthly orders of blank video tapes. Students fill the tapes, edit them roughly and send them back to Scholastic. By June, a complete yearbook will be created.

Club members spent the second part of last week reviewing tapes of their interviews and deciding which sections to use for the final product. On the tapes, students were asked what they would do if they had $1 million, who they think the school flirt is, and their picks for the most boring teacher.

Some students were naturals in front of the camera, breaking into rap songs or flirting with the interviewers. Most of the students in the video club said joining was a career move.

"It's new-age technology," said Dave Baback, a junior.

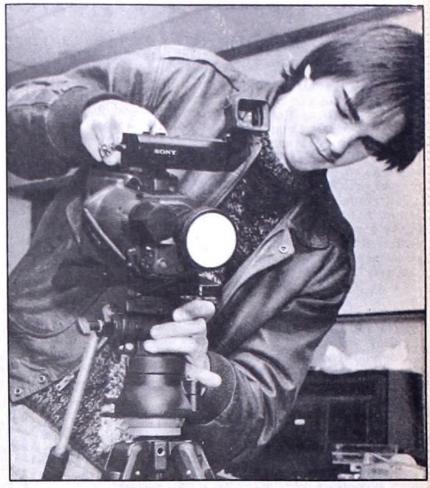

"I did it because I'm planning to go into broadcasting, and I thought it would be neat to see what it's like," said junior Stacie

However, when the students came to the club, they offered limited background in video productions. As they work on the yearbook, they learn as they go along.

"We kind of just figure it out,"

Brown said. One important club policy is to make group decisions about the content of their productions. During editing last week, nearly all of the members were present, crowding around a television monitor.

Because group members hope to purchase their own video equipment, they are now planning a candy sale fundraiser.

Tax relief proposal is unveiled

By TOM MOORADIAN ANP Staff Writer

Stressing that his proposal is "a real tax cut and not a tax shift", L. Brooks Patterson, former Oakland County prosecutor, last week announced plans to place before the voters of Michigan yet another school property tax reform proposal.

Patterson's announcement comes in the wake of resounding voter rejection of two proposals that toyed with hiking the state sales tax in exchange for property tax relief. The proposals were defeated in November by 3-1 margins.

"I believe when the voters understand what I am proposing they will support it," Patterson said at a recent meeting. "My proposal is not a tax shift but a legitimate tax cut.'

According to Patterson, the proposal he is introducing will reduce property taxes without a shift to a new tax, permanently limiting property and other tax collections, allocating more funds to K-12 education and strengthening taxpayer rights provisions of the Headlee Amendment.

Patterson will discuss his proposal at noon Friday at the Novi Hilton.

In order to place the proposal before the voters in November, Patterson, co-chairman Patrick L. Anderson, and their supporters will have to gather at least 300,000 voter signatures within a six-month deadline period.

In a press release, Patterson pointed out that Michigan "has the 12th highest overall tax burden in the nation and the fourth highest property tax rate in the nation, along with the eighth highest per pupil spending on education in the country.'

"The legislature and the governor will not pass true property tax relief," Patterson stated. "Now, we must do it ourselves. The citizens' proposal solves the problem of high property taxes and forces the state to make education their top funding priority.'

Among some of the provisions in the Patterson proposal

• Beginning Dec. 1, 1990, reduce all school operating millage rates to no more than 30 mills, cutting property taxes in approximately 400 Michigan school districts. Those school districts levying less than 30 mills would not have to change their current millage rate;

• Establish a permanent 30mill limit on school operating millage rates. (A mill is a $1 tax per $1,000 equalized, assessed valuation - usually half the estimated market value of property);

• Beginning with the 1991-92 school year, guarantee state funding of local schools on a per pupil basis. "Equalize" the first 28 mills such that each district will receive no less than $4,100 per pupil at 28 mills. Guarantee school districts levying less than 28 mills a prorated share of $4,100. Additionally, local millage up to 30 mills, or local revenue in excess of $4,100 at 28 mills, will increase spending in many districts above the $4,100 minimum guarantee;

• During a five-year transition period, limit per pupil spending increases to $100 per pupil per year. Create a "safety net" that gives all school districts at least an increase of $100 per student per year. These amounts would be adjusted for any further reductions in millage rates, and limits would not apply to "outof-formula" districts. (Out-offormula districts are districts in which property taxes generate enough tax money to finance the school district operation without the assistance of state aid);

If the Patterson amendment should win voter support, it would also strengthen provisions of the 1978 Headlee amendment. The Headlee Tax the rate of inflation. According to Patterson, the proposed amendment would also require: · An annual compliance report from the governor on constitutional tax limitations;

 Require voter approval of most local government general obligation bonds. Make judgment levies subject to constitutional tax limits;

 Limit state tax revenue to its current proportion of personal income, thereby preventing future large state tax increases without the approval of the voters;

It would also prohibit any new sales or use taxes on serSomewhere between your home and a nursing home is PERSONAL CARE at

Aides wear many 'different hats'

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER Belleville City Editor

Aides to Congressman William D. Ford (D-15th) wear "a lot of different hats" and work to make sure that "dust doesn't collect" on the requests of his constituents.

"Our office is really the constituents' office, and they are always welcome to bring their problems to us," said Pat Tallmadge, who has served on Ford's local staff for 25 years. "It is our task to help the congressman's constituents resolve problems they may have with various federal agencies social security, internal revenue, immigration, naturalization, the armed forces and service academies. In other words, we are here to help cut through the red tape and to find answers to questions that are brought to us."

The staff members must be able to answer numerous questions about federal programs, make appropriate referrals and know when to say, "I don't know, but I'll look it up," Tallmadge said. She added that often the constituents' problems involve misinterpretations and misunderstandings about federal regulations and policies, or a lack of sufficient information submitted to substantiate their claims.

The happiest moments for the staff, she said, are when they are able to provide services such as helping constituents adopt a foreign-born child, arranging congressional tours for families and assisting with the awarding of medals of merit. Another service that the congressman's staff performs shall recalled that the conis obtaining flags - complete with certifications that they have flown over the U.S. Capitol - to mark special occasions for their constituents.

The bulk of the day-to-day work performed in Congressman Ford's Wayne office by Tallmadge, Mary Dingeldey and Robin Marshall is coneerned with social security problems.

"It may be because our population is aging," Tallmadge said, "but it seems that most of our calls are regarding social security claims.

In a typical disability case, Tallmadge said, a claim is reviewed within 45 to 90 days and is approved for payment in 60 days. However, some claims are denied, appealed and assigned hearings, which can lengthen the process from six to 13 months and even up to two years or more, she said. In those instances, the claimants often contact the congressman's staff to help cut through the red tape, or just to clarify the rulings for them.

During the lengthy waiting period, the individual's life is on hold" with no income coming into the household and the uncertainty blocking plans for the future, Tallmadge said. Knowing how devastating this period can be, the staff works diligently to expedite the process as much as possible.

"I've been working on one case since August, 1984, that involves a man with some unusual medical and emotional problems. He has a hearing set in March, and I'm hoping he can have this resolved then," said Robin Marshall, commenting on one of the most lengthy cases she has handled during her four years on Ford's staff.

On the lighter side, Margressman's staff worked to get a reversal of a disability claim denial, but when news of the reversal came through she called the man to give him the good An aide working in the con- news, but was told he wasn't Tallmadge said she learned many years ago never to prejudge anyone who asked for help in filing a disability claim.

remember a very healthy looking woman coming in to ask for assistance in filing for social security," Tallmadge said. "At the time, I remember thinking that she looked too well to be asking for assistance, but within 60 days we received word that she had died. That taught me to always let the physicians do the diagnosing, not me.'

The best reward that the staff receives, Tallmadge said, is when someone stops by the office to say "thank you" and to let the staff members know that their work has made a difference in their lives.

Business team promotes area

By FLORENCE MEEKS ANP Staff Writer

Three area residents were recently appointed as board members for a group organized to promote business interests in Wayne County.

Formed in December 1985, the Business Development Team of Wayne County serves as an information network for local business people and those aspiring to form a business.

Appointed to the team board was Edward Rowe, president of Wayne company Rowe Electric; Jessie Moner, a member of the Inkster Economic Development Corporation and Laverne Finley, special projects consultant for the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

The business development team board is represented by 25 communities. The board directs activities of several Wayne County Economic Development Department staff members and the Business Development Center at Schoolcraft College under a cooperative program with the Michigan Department of Commerce.

Rowe, a member of Wayne City Council, said he was appointed to the development team board for his first term in December 1988. He summarized the team goals.

If someone wants to form a business, the team steers that person in the right direction, Rowe said. The team explains procedures and answers ques-

'We kind of work on the red tape," he said.

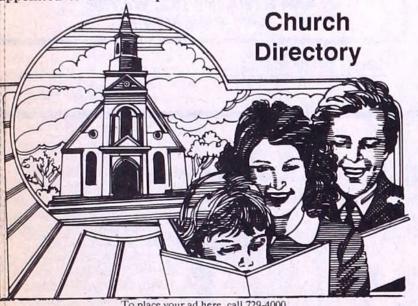

Another team goal is to improve relationships between business people and community governments. By achieving this goal, the team also helps people find business locations and obtain government contracts, Rowe said.

As the team encourages business and helps them set up shop locally, it indirectly brings new jobs into the community, Rowe

He pointed out few companies realize the team also offers workshops for newcomers to the business world, providing basic information.

"It's a real nice tool for companies to have ... I wish when I started off I had someone to go to," Rowe said.

Keeping pace in the market

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER ANP Belleville City Editor

The ability of the United States to compete in the world marketplace will be serverely restricted, if educational programs do not keep pace with the needs of modern technology, is the message of Wayne County Community College President Dr. Ron Temple.

In a speech to members of the Southern Wayne County Chamber of Commerce, Temple listed areas which "raise concern" for Michigan educa-

The shift from labor-intense jobs to knowledge-instense positions has not resulted in an accompanying rise in people seeking to upgrade their educational level, the WCCC president said. The result is that many people do not have the basic skills to learn new skills.

"In the next decade, 75 to 80 percent of new jobs which are created will require some post secondary schooling," Temple said. "However, one-third of the population has not completed high school. In addition, of the 100 largest metropolitan areas, this area is listed as 87th in the number of people with some college."

Temple sees the community college playing an essential role in the partnership between individuals and busineses.

"The community college can work in partnership with businesses and customize the kind of training needed to suit particular circumstances," Temple said. "The community college also can teach people how to learn."

On-site programs have provided instruction in basic reading, writing and arithmetic skills as well as training in more than 70 different technical areas, Temple said. He noted that WCCC has also provided organizational support work, staff consultations and employee assistance programs for businesses.

WCCC also can serve the small businessperson - those with five to 25 employees - by direct referral placements through the career placement program and with on-site visits to analyze needs. Employees from several small businesses can join together to make up a specialized training class, if there are not enough employees from one firm to fill a class, he said.

"Today, the community is the world. However, there are many areas in which American businesses do not compete,' Temple said. "We have a new field of international business that we must address.

"For example, there is only one company in the U.S. that makes televisions, not one U.S. company produces video cassette recorders and no longer does the U.S. produce ships to carry our goods," the WCCC president said. "There is a concern over our ability to compete in world markets. The U.S. needs to develop partnerships to make it more competitive."

Those partnerships can be enhanced through the training programs offered in the community colleges, Temple told the SWCCC audience. Coordinators are availabe at each of the five centers to work with business people in the community, and to customize programs to fill their needs.

Temple, who earned a master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Cincinnati, served in several adminsitrative posts at the college. In his last 10 years at U.C., Temple served concurrently as a history professor and dean of the University College.

Infertility Research and Treatment

How much help will you need to fill these shoes?

A couple trying to overcome a serious fertility problem has basically two options. Seek help from a small fertility clinic associated with a general hospital (a few of these actually attempt fairly advanced procedures like in vitro fertilization). Or choose the Hutzel Fertility Center. The difference is dramatic. Hutzel's program is medical center- and university-based; encompassing both treatment and research. Unlike general hospitals that mostly apply established technology, a comprehensive clinical and research center like Hutzel actually pioneers and develops new techniques.

Hutzel's century-long leadership in the reproductive sciences includes Michigan's first in vitro fertilization babies, the newest techniques of egg retrieval, and, to date, Michigan's first and only embryo freezing capabilities (which contribute significantly to reducing the risk of multiple births). Hutzel has also pioneered the concept of treating couples rather than individuals. This helps avoid unnecessary delays, expenses and frustration.

Hutzel's extra research and clinical dimension means more hope, every day, for patients with the most complex problems. And, because Hutzel's care costs no more, even couples with less serious problems can afford the extra peace of mind that comes with the Hutzel program.

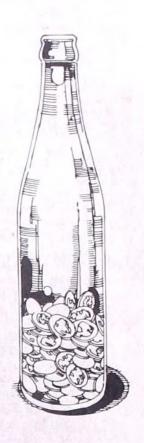

Infertility programs often require considerable economic and emotional investment by couples. To make the most of that investment, call the Hutzel Fertility Center for more information.

WONDERS OF TURKEY ANDEPHESUS

In discovering the wonders of Turkey and the Middle East, a visit to the Turkish city of Ephesus is sure to be one of your most memorable experiences. In the 2nd Century A.D., Ephesus' "golden age", it had a population of 300,000 and was one of the Mediterranean's principal ports. It not only monopolized the wealth of the Middle East, it was also a great intellectual and religious center.

The ancient protectress of Ephesus was the Greek god Artemis. The temple erected in her honor was one of the seven wonders of the world. Many ancient sites remain, and some of them have been restored, such as the Grand Theater and the Celsus Library. Ephesus is also important in the history of Christianity. It was here that St. Paul came to win converts, and later St. John, accompanied by the Virgin Mary.

She spent her last days in a small house on a hill near Ephesus. A chapel erected on this site was visited recently by Pope John Paul II.

A visit to Ephesus is most easily incorporated with a tour to Greece and a cruise of the islands. A ten day package including a three island cruise during the summer is $1,884 per person including roundtrip air. A discount of $150 per person will be extended for packages paid in full prior to March 15.

Dr. Victor is the medical director of the Sleep Disorder Center at Oakwood Downriver Medical Center

OAKWOOD SLEEP CENTER OFFERS TREATMENT FOR COMMON SLEEP DISORDERS

By Lyle D. Victor, M.D.

More than 50 million Americans suffer from some form of sleep disorder, approximately one million in Southeastern Michigan alone. These disorders can affect all aspects of a person's life.

Sleep disorders take various forms. Examples include excessive daytime sleepiness; insomnia; excessive snoring: episodes of respiratory apnea, suspension of breathing: impotency; irritating leg movements; or sleeping at inappropriate times, such as while eating, driving, or during intimacy.

Many factors can affect sleep. including emotional problems, alcohol or drug abuse, heredity, and physiological factors (receding jaw, enlarged tonsils, etc.) However, a particular condition is not considered a sleeping disorder until it persists for an extended period of time - three to four weeks.

Although polysomnology, the science of sleep, is a relatively new area of medicine, simple, effective treatments are available. Your family physician can evaluate your sleeping habits and determine whether you would benefit from a consultation with a sleep disorder specialist.

Diagnosis of these disorders at Oakwood's Sleep Disorder Center is usually done on an outpatient basis. Following the initial visit, the physician determines whether an overnight sleep study is necessary.

A night sleep study involves the patient visiting the clinic at night and sleeping for eight hours. The physician monitors the patient's sleep habits using a polygraph machine. Eye movements, respiration, and other physiological factors are also monitored.

An individualized treatment program can be developed after analysis of the results to help the patient get a more restful night's sleep.

If you think you have a problem, check with your family physician or call the Sleep Disorder Center at Oakwood Downriver Medical Center, (313) 383-6000.

More education funds, but at whose expense

L. Brooks Patterson's much talked-about plan to fund Michigan school districts while cutting property taxes was finally unveiled this week.

Was it worth the wait? Well, that depends.

Patterson outlines a comprehensive plan for alotting funds to public school districts throughout the state. The plan is well thought out, and includes some realistic ideas for modifying funding formulas.

On the other hand, Patterson opens a new can of worms by asking state leaders to find $750 million somewhere in the folds of the general operating budget.

Without a doubt, we all now understand the importance of education. Not only in the short term does education affect our lives, our future also depends on young people being educated in fields of high technology. But $750 million in cuts? From where should we cut?

State prisons are spilling over, and no one is prepared to permit dangerous felons in their neighborhoods. Quality education, of course, will someday lessen the problem of jail overcrowding, but what do we do until that time?

Michigan residents are dying as a result of inadequate health care because of the inability to afford such services. Do we allow them to fester by cutting budgets for social programs which provide them with nourishing food and medical attention? Quality education, of course, will someday solve the problems of poverty and homelessness, but what do we do until that time?

Jobs are important to the residents of Michigan allowing them to support their families and survive from day to day. Do we ignore the needs of workers by halting efforts to attract economic development in the state? Of course, quality education will someday help us overcome the problems of unemployment, but what do we until all the people of Michigan have jobs?

Every legislator in the state has an interest that is especially near and dear to his heart - that issue is also probably on the minds of his or her constituents. Asking them to cut their budgets, even a little bit, to find an additional $750 million will create quite a stir.

Patterson's plan for funding education has its good points. It calls for a ceiling on the millage that school districts can levy, guarantees all 400 state school districts a $4,100 per-pupil allocation, and limits increases of that spending rate during the early years of the plan.

It sounds great. The schools are guaranteed a more equal piece of the state funding pie, and the homeowners are assessed less property taxes due to the ceiling on the millage rate.

But where will the money come from to meet these costs, if not from the homeowners?

The plan also hammers the state with strict requirements to meet these costs.

The only thing left to do is cut programs from the state budget. And that, my friends, is not likely to happen.

There is nothing so critical to our future as education, and this dilemma of inequitable funding and schools operating with deficits make the process of learning and teaching much more difficult.

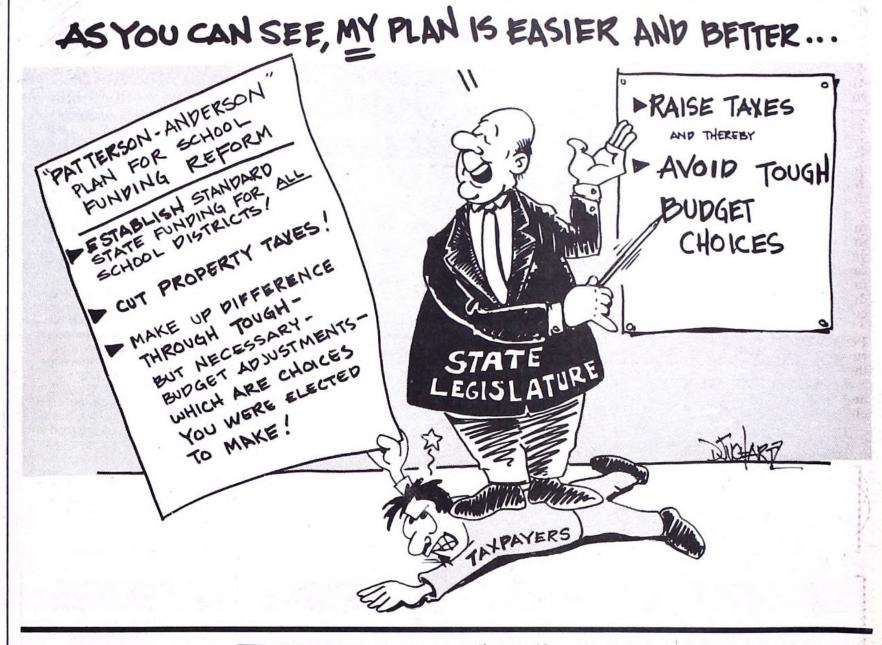

It is crucial that we all put effort into plans to make the learning process a priority in our lives. Mr. Patterson has obviously done so, and while his plan seems very unlikely at this point in time, it is a plan.

As we consider the possibilities for funding education, we must also consider how we as parents and citizens can make a difference in the educational system. We must make education a priority in our own lives by instilling in our children, and our neighbors the belief that the learning process is continuous, and without it our lives would be stale and hopeless. Take time out to consider the options, to consider the value of your own educational experience, and then look for a way out of the troubles we now face.

Mr. Patterson should be saluted for the time and effort he, and his supporters, put into this plan. Whether politi-cally motivated or not, he has taken the matter to heart. He has unveiled a plan to serve the educational system, while lessening the burden on you and I.

It was worth the wait, but the plan still needs some

Failed march proves point

The failed Washington D.C. march of the anti-choice group recently, proves a number of important issues.

The anti-choice side lacks popular support to make abortion illegal and unsafe. They had a year, as they do every year, to plan and promote this demonstration. Last year 67,000 showed up. This year the report was between 35,000 and 75,000.

In contrast, in November 1988 pro-choice activitists called for a march to take place in April of 1989. With a scant live months to plan, 500,000 people participated. Then pro-choice returned 300,000 in November 1989 for another rally at the Lincoln Memorial. Clearly, the people in the United States are overwhelmingly in support of legal abortion and the right of a woman to make this private decision herself.

Legal abortion is safe. For 17 years, 23 million women have decided this is their best alternative. A known antichoice doctor, Doctor C. Everett Koop, surgeon general of the United States, was pressured tofind evidence of medical and psychological harm and was unable to do so.

This rally, that seemed to celebrate when stories of illegal abortion with the sad side effects were told, also showed that anti's don't listen to the voices of women who say, "This is my body, my choice, and my responsibility.

No convincing is necessary

I read with interest your recent article relating to Westland's attempt to convince the Michigan State Highway Authority of the need for an interchange at I-275 and Warren Road. Anyone who regularly commutes in the I-275 corridor does not need to be convinced of the need. They see it every day in the excess congestion that occurs at both the 1-275 and Ann Arbor Road interchange and at the I-275 and Ford Road interchange. I personally have travelled this route for twelve years and it is a regular hassle to board I-275 at Ford Road with backups of over one mile to Lilley Road when going to work, and another backup on I-275 from the Koppernick railroad bridge to the Ford Road exit on the way home from work.

An interchange at I-275 and Warren Road would greatly relieve the existing congestion that exists in this area today.

Interchanges are already in place at one mile intervals east along I-96 from Merriman to I-275, and north along I-275 from Six to Eight Mile Roads. But south from Six Mile Road there are interchanges at only 2.7 mile intervals at Ann Arbor Road and Ford Road. No wonder these interchanges are always jammed.

I hope all the residents of Plymouth, Livonia, Canton and Westland who use the I-275 com- to march because of the budget muting corridor write to their mayors and state representatives in support on Westland's proposal for an interchange at I-275 and Warren Road. Stan Sidick

'No-show' band is explained

This letter is written in response to a letter published in the Jan. 11, 1990 edition concerning the missing Belleville High School band at the Belleville holiday parade.

I know the Belleville High School Band and Band Booster Club appreciate your support. Being a band booster and parent of a band member, I too, was sorry they were not in the Christmas Parade in Belleville this past December.

However, where have you been since school began in August? You certainly didn't go to a football game, and you haven't kept up with your reading of the Enterprise. Now if you had, you would know that due to cutbacks in the school district budget there is no marching band or jazz band at Belleville high. Symphony band was kept on the class schedules. There have been two publicized concerts so far this year, and even without some of the students who had to drop band because the school day was cut to a 5hour day (they had to take other classes) the concerts have been fantastic. The concerts are free and open to everyone. The students may not be able cuts, but they sure put on a great concert. Come join us.

In closing Mrs. Palland, next time please be sure of the facts before you verbally attack an innocent group of students.

Think carefully before voting

I hope parents will think carefully before voting Feb. 8. I to wonder at times if our money is being spent wisely within the school system, but our chilren are too important for it to be left alone. I also can't help but think that is our teachers were paid a better wage the profession would attract better teachers. Quite often the really good teachers move on to other jobs because they can't afford to support a family on a teacher's salary. I know we have a lot of very dedicated teachers out there but we also have a lot who shouldn't be teaching. We need to work together to improve this situa-

Student says vote yes

As a students of the Wayne Westland schools I urge you to support the millage proposals which will appear on the February 8 ballot. The amount of money which will be generated is a small price to pay to maintain the quality program which exists in the Wayne-Westland schools. For approximately $125 per home we can keep our classes and extra-curricular activities.

Food

Tradition can be tempting

In 1846, Catharine Beecher offered the following advice to young Boston homemakers preparing to bake cakes.

"Tie up your hair so that none can fall, put on a long-sleeved apron, have the kitchen put in order, and then arrange all the articles and utensils you have occasion to use. "It saves much trouble to have your receipt (sic) book so arranged that you can measure instead of weighing. Always sift your flour, not merely because there may be dirt in it, but because packing injures its lightness, and sifting restores it.'

Personally, I think old Catherine had the right idea. How many times have we all forgotten to sift our flour only to find those big clumps of dirt right in our cakes and pie crusts? And I think that everyone should have someone available to put our kitchens in order for us as she so wisely advised. She went on to tell the bakers of that era that if there should be any failures in the "receipts" she gave them, that all her directions had been tested and therefore the fault was undoubtedly "in the baking."

She covered all the bases. Unfortunately, when mistakes are found in recipes in this column, there is no effective disclaimer. It is especially distressing when some poor soul phones to explain that she (or he) is in the process of creating one of these culinary delights I have recommended, only to find I have either left out an ingredient or told them to put a cup of salt in an angel food cake. Fortunately for me, most of these calls are from good-natured, understanding souls who are patient and considerate while I find the correct directions for them.

Catherine, I'm sure, didn't have these problems. I stumbled across her wisdom in a museum in Boston last month, and had to smile at some of the ancient directions and recipes in one of the cookbooks there. Obviously, cooks in the 1800s had to do everything the hard

While snooping through the old cookbooks, however, I did come across what one guide informed me was still considered the best gingerbread recipe in the world.

1887 Gingerbread

- 1/4 cup shortening 1/2 cup sugar
- 3/4 teaspoon baking soda 1/2 cup molasses
- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 3/4 teaspoon baking powder 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves pinch salt
- 3/4 cup boiling water

1 egg, lightly beaten

Cream together the shortening and the sugar. Beat 1/2 teaspoon baking soda into the molasses until fluffy and light. Add this to the sugar mixture. Sift together the flour, baking powder, cinnamon, ginger, cloves and salt. Mix together the boiling water and the remaining 1/4 teaspoon baking soda, then gradually add this liquid, alternately with the dry ingredients, to the molasses mixture. Stir until well mixed, then stir in the egg. Butter and flour an 8-inch square pan and pour in the batter. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven for about 25 minutes, or until a straw inserted in the center comes out clean. (OK, OK, you can use a toothpick, Catherine will never know.) Let cool in the pan on a wire rack. Serve warm with sweetened whipped cream.

Delicious beginnings

By FLORENCE MEEKS ANP Staff Writer

Onion soup mix and sour cream simply do not cut it anymore, and dill dips are way overdone.

Creativity is the key to successful dips today, maintains Belleville businesswoman Ginger Bruder.

Bruder sells dip mixes in her downtown gift shop, Miss Ginger's, and often hosts receptions for area business people featuring the resulting creations and a host of accompanying appetizers.

Cooking in general is a love of Bruder's. She said she avoids following recipes unless she is baking. Usually, she adds her own special touches to a dish - a dash of this, a pinch of that. "I love to make everything...I catered my own wedding for 250 people.'

Several years ago when Bruder was planning to open Miss Ginger's she considered selling spices and dip mixes. When customers responded favorably, Bruder picked up efforts to locate new recipes and began the occasional appetizer receptions.

Now, treats like her cream cheese dip for fruit and honey glazed chicken are in hot demand.

Crucial for success, Bruder said, is presentation.

"Food appearance is very important. Pay attention to color.

Color contrast always adds appeal, she said. Bruder showed off a glass jar of pickled vegetables in bright shades of orange, red and green.

An added plus, the pickling method adds zest to otherwise bland winter vegetables, Bruder said.

Bruder then suggested highlighting the food with doilies, lettuce leaves or vegetable garnishes such as carrot curls or cucumber stars

Simple touches such as colored plates, napkins or even toothpicks tend to add appeal, she continued.

When shopping for dips, Bruder seeks versatility. One of her favorite dips can also be used in potato salad or served with chicken, sandwiches or beans.

"I look for things that have a lot of variety," she said.

If something is unusual, it also has a good chance of being snatched up by Bruder. She says shopping around for the unique is worth the effort.

Other tips for dips - Bruder advised following unfamiliar recipes carefully, tasting for quality before serving (quite the sacrifice) and shopping for ingredients in advance.

Most of the appetizer recipes listed below are used frequently by Bruder. The recipes do not tell how to make dips, but some suggest new ways to utilize them.

Honey glazed chicken

- 6 boned chicken breasts, skinned
- 4 tablespoons butter, melted 1/2 cup honey
- 1/4 cup prepared mustard
- 2 teaspoons New Delhi Dilly herbs

Mix all ingredients except chicken. Dip chicken pieces in sauce, arrange single layer in a baking dish and pour remaining sauce over. Bake at 375 degrees for 40 minutes. Serve with rice. Supplied by Jodie's Kitchen.

California potato salad

- 1 pound red potatoes, cooked and cut in 1-inch chunks
- 1/4 cup celery, sliced
- 6 to 8 large cherry tomatoes, cut in half
- 1/2 cup carrots, sliced in 1/4 inch rounds and cooked but still crunchy
- 1/3 cup pitted black olives
- 1/2 cup sliced mushrooms (if small, just cut in half)
- Dip to moisten to taste (recipe recommends dip with Happy Tom spices)

Combine ingredients and serve chilled. Makes two to three servings. Recipe from Jodie's Kitchen.

Country salami mix

Salt and pepper to taste

1 package Country Salami Mix 3 to 5 pounds ground beef, turkey or ground venison

Add entire packet of spices to meat. Using three pounds of ground meat, salami will be spicy. Use four pounds, salami will be medium spicy. Using five pounds, salami will be mild. Mix well with hands. Shape into four loaves (rolls). Cover and refrigerate for 24 to 72 hours. Large zip lock bag works best. Remove covering, place loaves on broiling pan (or some type of roasting rack to allow drainage while baking) and bake at 225 to 250 degrees for four hours. Turn loaves over after three hours and continue baking for the remaining one hour. Drain and cool on paper towels. Refrigerate. Baked salami may be

Icebox pickles

Approximately 6 to 8 medium cucum-

- 3 onions
- 3 cups sugar 3 cups vinegar
- Country Icebox Pickle Mix

Wash cucumbers and slice to desired thickness. Amount of cucumbers needed varies according to their size. Peel and slice onions. You may increase or reduce amount of onions according to your own taste. Layer sliced cucumbers and onions in a one-gallon container (jar, crock, etc.). Make sure container is packed full. In separate bowl mix pickling spices with sugar and vinegar. White vinegar produces the best results. Pour this mixture over sliced cucumbers and onions. Now add enough water to cover cucumbers and onions completely. Do not exceed one-and-a-half cups water. Cover and refrigerate at least 24 hours before eating. Shake or stir occasionally. For a more tart, less sweet pickle, reduce sugar to one and a half or two cups. Mixture will keep three months in refrigerator. Recipe allows any vegetable that will stay crispcucumbers, zucchini, onions, green or yellow peppers, celery, carrots, cabbage or cauliflower.

Fruit salad exotic

1/4 cup pineapple juice

- Any type of fruit in bite-size pieces,
- enough for four people 1/4 cup salad oil
- 1 tablespoon huney 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons wine vinegar

1 teaspoon New Delhi Dilly herbs Whip with a whisk until creamy and let flavor mellow for several hours. A tablespoon of mayonnaise or sour cream adds a nice variation.

Canton sports lounge offers best of all worlds

By FLORENCE MEEKS ANP Staff Writer

Known to most customers as a sports lounge, Kenny's in Canton Township also boasts a full menu of lunch and dinner selections.

Kenny's opened several months ago, according to manager Jan Plumridge. The lounge is not related in any way to Kenny's restaurant in Ypsilanti, she said.

The Canton Township lounge features five television screens -three full size and two behind the bar. During the recent Superbowl game, the lounge was jammed, Plumridge said.

While the bar and television screens are a top attraction, Kenny's does not disappoint those after a good meal, Plumridge said. Daily food specials have become a tradition among regulars.

Friday is the day for fish fries: ribs are served on Thursdays; Wednesday is spaghetti day and steak and stuffed shrimp are featured every Saturday.

Other menu selections include sandwiches, nachos, burritos, Coney Island hot dogs, tacos, and lunch specials.

"We have good pizza here too," Plumridge added.

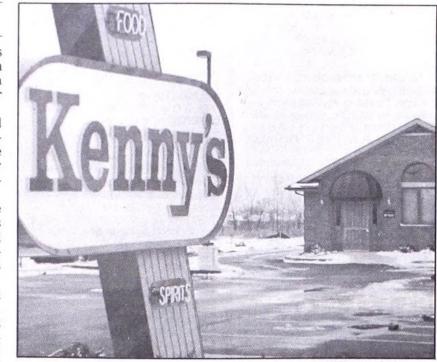

For dessert, Kenny's offers a different type of cheesecake everyday, the ultimate in decadence.

'A lot of people like something sweet after they eat," Plumridge said.

Plumridge pointed out television is not the sole source of entertainment at Kenny's. A disc jockey goes into action from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday.

The music is usually top 40 or rock oldies, Plumridge said, and is based on requests from the dance floor.

For private parties or meetings, the lounge offers a meeting room with a 32-person capacity. The room can be rented for special events.

Because of the variety in food selections and entertainment at Kenny's, the lounge tends to cater to a wide age group. Plumridge estimated Kenny's customers range from their 20s to their 50s.

DJ nights attract a group in the 25-to-35 age group, she Kenny's is open from 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to midnight Sunday. The lounge is located on Canton Center Road north of Ford Road.

Couple celebrates Valentine's Day every day

By FLORENCE MEEKS ANP Staff Writer

In an age of frequent divorce, Myrtle and Clinton McNett are becoming a vanishing breed.

Clinton said the secret to marriage is simple.

"Just get along, that's all."
The McNetts agreed raising children can place a strain on some marriages, but they said parenthood only strengthened their relationship. Myrtle said couples with children should fight all the harder to make their relationship work, they have so much to value.

"Most divorces are stupid. Think what you saw in the marriage, what you saw in each other in the beginning," Myrtle advised.

Romulus, the defending champ, is favored to repeat as the Romulus Roman newspaper's girls' volleyball queen when the teams get together Saturday to decide the 1990 championships. The champs have in their lineup: Jennifer Daniel (kneeling, from left), Jennifer McClure, Angie Slawinski, Michele Scarrow, and Tammy Trubilowicz; standing, from left, are: Charmaine Smith, Susan Molenda, Susan Hamel, Christine Stratton, Renee Bitner, Brooke Hammers, and Coach Gail Coleman. Romulus seeks repeat as Roman volleyball champ

By TOM MOORADIAN ANP Staff Writer

If any of the 10 other competing girls' volleyball teams want the 1990 Romulus Roman crown, they will have to snatch it away from the host, Romulus

Romulus coach Gail Coleman believes that the Eagles are the "team to beat" at Saturday's invitational, which will get under way at 8:30 a.m. at the Romulus senior high school gymnasium.

Among those teams that have accepted the challenge to play in the tournament are: Inkster. Dearborn Heights Robichaud, Taylor Center, Taylor Baptist Park, Melvindale, Woodhaven, Riverview Gabriel Richard, and Clarenceville.

"I look for a good tournament," Coleman said, "but I am convinced off of the way we have been playing of late that we are the team to beat in this tournament.'

Coleman conceded that if her Eagles should have an off-day, look for Lincoln Park, Clarenceville, or Woodhaven to capture the crown.

Romulus will take an impressive 4-1 South Central Conference record to the invitational after "fantastic" victories over Ann Arbor Pioneer and Adrian. Again, Coleman applauded the "team defense" as the key to the victory.

"Our kids played outstanding defense last week.

And we must continue to do that if we want to win the invitational on Saturday.

Against Pioneer, behind the exceptional play of Chris Stratton, Jennifer Daniel, Sue Hamel, and Brooks Hammers, the Eagles surfaced with a 3-2 edge. After winning the first game 15-13, they then bowed to their SCC rivals, 15-10 but came back and won a 15-13 thriller. Romulus was buried 15-4 in the fourth game, but regained their composure and won the decisive fifth game, 15-12.

Stratton contributed nine kills, while Daniel chipped in eight kills, four aces, 10 service points and 12 assists.

Hamel had four kills and Hammers turned in with 15 assists. Michele Scarrow also served up 18 service points.

In another thriller, Romous jolted Adrian (15-9, 12-15, 10-15), 16-14), 15-10). "The serving was just fantastic against Adrian-we had 21 aces," Coleman noted. "And it was a good match right down to the final game."

Scarrow accounted for eight kills, seven aces, and 18 service points; Hamel also had 12 points, seven kills and an ace, while Stratton picked up four kills, an equal number aces and 11 service points; Daniel finished with three kills, six aces and 14 service points.

To tune up for the Romulus Roman Invitational, the Eagles played SCC rival, Ypsilanti, Monday.

Belleville edges Wayne Tankers for 9th victory

By TOM MOORADIAN ANP Staff Writer

A 1-2 finish in the breaststroke event enabled Belleville to eke out a close 87-85 victory over archrival, Wayne Memorial, in a Wolverine 'A' Swim Conference last Thursday.

The victory lifted the Tigers' to a 5-1 conference record and kept them in second place. They are 9-1 on the year.

'The 1-2 finish in the breaststroke actually was the deciding factor in this meet," said Belleville coach Greg Cooper. "Wayne had to finish 1-2 in the final event, the freestyle relay, and I was confident that their second relay team wouldn't finish ahead of our kids.'

In that decisive breaststroke event, Belleville's Eric Sattler led teammate Brent Held to the wall. Sattler's winning time was a 1:09.0, while Held was clocked in 1:10.3.

Wayne won the freestyle relay event with a 3:37.91, with Belleville's entry coasting in second in 3:42.48. Wayne's second team placed third (4:00.78).

While Belleville rebuilds its diving program, Wayne dominated the boards. Wayne divers placed 1-2 while the Tigers' best was Sean Garland, who carded 181.4 points for third place. Teammate Reid Shirley finished fifth with 134.65 points.

Belleville captured seven other first places thanks to double-winners Mike Bird, Trevor Yeary, and Bryan Bogardus.

Bird, an All-Area swimmer a year ago and senior captain of the Tigers this year, turned in a 5:14.73 to win the 500-yard freestyle. He was clocked in 1:54.07 in winning the 200-yard freestyle.

Yeary emerged with victories in the 200-yard individual medley (2:13.25) and the 100yard backstroke (1:00.53). Bogardus covered the 50-yard freestyle in 23.60, then stroked a 50.97 in claiming the 100-yard

Cooper opened his bid for a victory against Wayne with a medley foursome that consisted of Yeary, Held, Bogardus and Sattler, who combined for a 1:48.82 to chalk up the vic-

"There's a fierce rivalry between the two schools when it comes to swimming," Cooper said. "And our kids rose to the occasion.'

Belleville will return to the conference waters tonight at 7 when it hosts Wyandotte. The Tigers swam out-of-league rival, Westland John Glenn, on Tuesday.

Belleville also dunked Adrian, 46-37, on Tuesday, avenging a loss to their nonconference rivals. Again, the Belleville veterans came through.

Of the Tigers' nine first places, Yeary posted two victories. He claimed the 200-yard individual medley (2:12.62) and also won the 100-yard butterfly (59.60). Sattler chipped in with a pair of wins, taking the 50freestyle in 24.99, and the 100breaststroke in 1:08.31.

Ken Tolliver shaved five seconds off his best time to win the 500-yard freestyle in Bogardus also posted a double victory as he churned a 50.28 for the 100-yard freestyle; he turned in a 1:06.7 to win the backstroke event.

The Tigers' winning combination for the medley relay included Yeary, Sattler, Bogardus and Tolliver who finished in 1:51.54.

While Belleville continues to rebuild its diving program, Wayne came up with a 1-2 punch in the event. However, the Tigers managed to survive and won the Wolverine 'A' Conference dual meet with one point to spare. Above, Belleville diver Reid Shirley comes out of one of his dives that helped earn for him a fifth-place berth. In the photo below, two-event winner Mike Bird of Belleville leads Wayne's Tony Boon to the wall in the 500-yard freestyle event. Inkster shows Oak Park cagers 'who's the boss'

By TOM MOORADIAN ANP Staff Writer

Inkster cagers began the second round of Suburban Athletic Conference basketball competition Friday night as they did the first round, with an impressive victory over Oak Park.

However, unlike the firstround when the Vikings were forced to hand over the 68-58 victory to the Redskins because of an illegal player in their lineup, Coach George Thompson, Jr. and the Vikings will be able to keep the 66-62 win they earned Friday night.

That victory shoved Inkster right back into the SAC title picture. Although Oak Park is on top (5-1), the Redskins still have to play Highland Park (5-1), and Inkster has a later date on its home court with the Parkers. The two will meet Feb. 23.

"It could come down to our game with Highland Park - the winner of that game probably will surface as the next SAC champ," said Thompson, who in the next breath advised caution. "However, we can't be looking ahead to that game. We have some tough ones before playing Highland Park."

Inkster parlayed the outstanding defense of Marcus Kewley and Gary Fizer with the sharpshooting of Tyron Orr to squelch the Redskins' ambitions of staying atop of the standings.

Orr pumped in a career-high 27 points to lead the Viking uprising. He connected on 12 field goals, three of them from the three-point range. But the Redskins didn't surrender without a fight. Trailing by four (16-12) at the end of the first period, Oak Park came within a basket of tying the score at halftime (29-27) thanks to baskets from Herb Taylor and James Dixon, who sparked the loser's attack.

With the Vikings in jeopardy because of personal fouls -Claude McReynolds and Jamal Poplar eventually fouled out -Thompson was forced to abandon his man-to-man in favor of the zone in the final minutes.

Inkster got some breathing room with a 21-17 scoring advantage in the third quarter, then hung on as the Redskins made a run at them in the closing minutes.

Oak Park managed to stay close thanks to a 16-of-27 performance at the free throw line; Inkster had five of 11 at the foul stripe. The disparity of free throws triggered the following comment from the Viking coach.

'I don't know what we can do about it - if anything - but it seems that the officiating is getting out of hand. Just look at the number of free throws we shot as compared to what they got. They're taking the game away from the players, and that's bad," Thompson said.

Romulus, riding high on 10 of his 18 points in that opening three straight victories, came tumbling down to earth as South Central Conference basketball foe, Ann Arbor Pioneer, jolted the Eagles, 79-71, before the Romulus home crowd.

Disappointed by the setback, first-year Romulus Coach Chris Molloy said that his team lost its tenacity to play.

"And we we lost our concentration," Molloy said. "We didn't play well at all, especially in the second half.'

With All-Area senior guard Virgil Davis at the throttle, the Romulus cage machine rolled to a 24-13 lead in the first period as Davis distributed pass after pass to his teammates, who turned them into easy baskets.

Pioneer began to turn the tide around in its favor in the second period. Though Romulus emerged with a seven-point lead (35-28) after the first two periods, the visiting Pioneers, thanks to Sean Kenny, Sean Higgins and Matt Whitehouse began coming to life.

Kenny tossed in nine of his 19 points in the third period as Pioneer closed to within a basket, 51-49, of catching their SCC rivals. They exploded to a 30point fourth quarter as Kenny got eight and Whitehouse added seven to take command of the game.

'After the first period, we didn't look like the same Forward Larry Perkins scored team," said Molloy.

Belleville wrestles like Wolverine 'A' champ again

By TOM MOORADIAN ANP Staff Writer

For the sixth time in seven years, Belleville wrestlers have brought home the Wolverine 'A' Conference crown.

And this year Coach Gerald Malecek and his Tigers not only retained the league title but also boast six of the 13 individual weight class champs.

"I am really proud of these kids," said Malecek, whose teams have now won conference titles in the last three decades and have one of the most impressive records of any Class A schools.

"We have won titles in the 1970's, 1980's and now in the 1990's," said Malecek. "These kids are exceptional.

Belleville also produced the Wolverine 'A' Conference's

Most Valuable Wrestler' in Derek Reed, a 112-pounder. Reed, Steven Davis (119), Mike Komaromi (160), Mike Braswell (171), Jeff Komaromi (189) and heavyweight Jim Howe each won gold medals in their respective weight classes.

In fact, Belleville qualified seven of their wrestlers for the finals and six of them finished in first place.

Reed increased his personal record to 34-1 on the year as he clashed with Trenton's Dan Hassett in the finals. The Tiger grappler pinned his opponent

However, Reed had to come in 3:26 back from a 5-0 deficit to tie the match at five-all, before pinning his opponent.

A two-time league champ and three-time finalist, Reed has earned the No. 2 ranking in

Davis reached the finals of the 119-pound class where he found Wayne Memorial's Aaron Allen waiting for him. The Belleville wrestler won convincingly, pinning his opponent

Mike Komaromi had to contend with Dave Porath in the finals. The Trenton wrestler had defeated his rival earlier in the year, but Komaromi came back and won a 7-2 decision.

Trenton's Greg Simmons also learned he was no match for Braswell, who won his gold via a 3:45 fall.

Jeff Komaromi, Mike's younger brother, stepped on to the winner's dais with a 6-2 victory over Perry Leagis of Lincoln Park.

One of the surprises of the conference was the outstanding performance by Belleville heavyweight Jim Howe, who won his first league title with a stunning 3-1 decision over Monroe's Tom Kuehnlein.

Belleville produced a runnerup in 140-pounder Chris Williams, who lost a 14-11 decision to Sam Hussein of Fordson.

The Tigers had a silver medalist in 125-pounder Todd Park's Bruce Hurley, 6-2, in the consolation championship.

Although they didn't win medals, Belleville's Sean Zaborowski (145) and Bobby Asher (152) finished fourth. Medals were presented to the top three finishers in each of the 13 weight classes.

Belleville and Trenton will share the 1989-90 championships because the Trojans managed to defeat Malecek's Tigers, 30-29, in dual meet competition earlier in the year.

"We have to share the league championship with them because they did beat us," Malecek said, "but I think everyone knows who is deserving of the championship this year.'

With the league and dual meet season out of the way, local wrestlers turn to district competition. The team district championships were decided Wednesday. Belleville was: host to Ypsilanti, Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem.

On Saturday, the individual championships will be conducted. Belleville joins some 18 to 20 other local and area teams to compete at Bedford Temperance. The top four finishers in each of the weight classes will advance to the regionals.

In the team championships, however, only the winner

Belleville rips production by the did the first round and the firs they did the first r Trenton, 63-43

By TOM MOORADIAN ANP Staff Writer

With 11 of their players finding their way into the scoring column, the Tigers of Belleville pounded Trenton 63-43 Friday night to move one victory closer to their rematch with undefeated Wayne Memorial.

Coach Michael Garland and the Tigers have a 9-1 Wolverine 'A' Conference record. The lone loss was inflicted by the Wayne Zebras, who galloped to their 10th straight league win last week and are heading down the stretch toward the championship.

However, Wayne Coach Chuck Henry has a rematch with Belleville on March 3 and the outcome of that game should decide whether there will be co-champs in the league again this year. Last year, Wayne and Belleville finished in a two-way tie for first place.

"These kids know what our goals are," Garland said. "If they want the title, they will have to win the rest of their games and not rely on anyone but themselves.'

Trenton stayed with Belleville, 17-15, for eight minutes, but that was about all the Trojans could do. The Tigers tightened the screws in the second period, gave up a mere two baskets for the quarter and only allowed 18 points the rest of the way.

Belleville led 32-19 at the halfway mark, then went on to outscore their rivals 13-8 and 16-6 in the final two periods.

Paul Gardette and Benjie Goldston led the winners with 14 and 10 points, respectively. Chris Mace was the only player to reach double figures for Trenton. He had 11.

Belleville returns to the home court Friday night when the Tigers host Monroe.

Futuristic precautions

Safer brakes and 'drowse alarms' are new options for cars

By JOHN AGGE ANP Staff Writer

Not all automobile accidents are preventable, but domestic car manufacturers are introducing accident avoidance systems to give drivers high-tech driving assistance.

Already available on some cars and trucks is the anti-lock braking system. These computerized braking systems reduce stopping distances on most surfaces and increase maneuverability while braking on slippery surfaces, said Thomas J. Carr, director of the Safety and International Department of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

Traction control, an extension of the anti-lock braking technology, is also currently available on a few models. This system links the steering, braking and suspension systems of the vehicle to avoid wheel spins and increase driver control in various driving conditions, Carr said.

"Sleepy-driver" alert sys-tems are already being utilized by truck drivers and should hit the car market soon. The system is hooked to either the driver or the steering wheel. If the driver dozes at the wheel, an alarm goes off.

The next generation of car safety features might read like something out of "Flash Gordon" or "Star Wars," but are not far off, Carr said.

Soon, cars will be equipped with computer controlled powertrains able to automatically increase engine power or shift gears as driving conditions change. The computer will electronically sense and gather information, process the driving information and make the necessary adjustments in the operation of the vehicle.

The anti-lock braking system is a definite safety improvment, but automobiles of the future will be equipped with an even better radar braking system, Carr said.

Radar, brakes and the accelerator will act together to determine when brakes should automatically engage.

'While speed, weather conditions and other relevant information will determine when the system takes control, the driver will still have the ability to manually operate the car,"

The International Auto Show in Detroit in January introduced concept cars and some new models equipped with heads-up display systems. This system allows drivers to keep their eyes on the road and still be able to see turn signals and the speedometer of their car. The dashboard signals appear to hover in the air above the hood of the car and can adjust to the height of the driver.

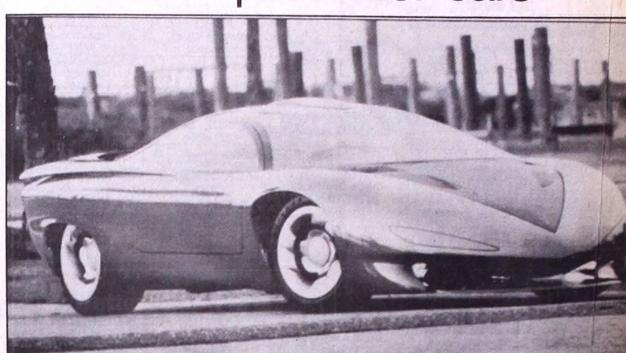

Rear obstacle detection devices being developed will be able to emit a signal when

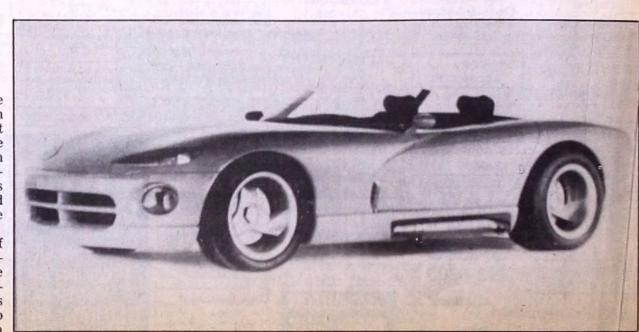

Concept cars of the past and present have helped to push safety standards to the edge of technology. Concept cars, on display at auto shows, have given consumers the opportunity to "vote" on the features they want to have on their new family automobiles. Some concept cars that have influenced the domestic auto industry include the 1983 Ford Barchetta (above), the 1988 Pontiac Banshee (top, right), and the 1989 Dodge Viper (bottom, right). These cars of the future offer safety options which will change the face of the auto industry. ANP file photos something is behind a vehicle while the driver is moving in reverse. The device can detect objects 15 feet away from the vehicle and only operates when the driver has the vehicle in reverse. Other concept vehicles at the auto show were equipped with cameras mounted in the rear to monitor backing.

Safer cars are a priority of car manufacturers as mandated by the consumer and the government. Auto manufacturers are expanding the limits of technology, Carr said, to make the inevitable accident a less common occurrence.
